DESCRIPTION

The Topix index is a market-cap weighted index measuring the performance of the stocks in the “first section” of the Tokyo Stock Exchange. The Japanese stock market is divided into three “sections”, roughly based on capitalization, but criteria also include number of shareholders, trading volume, and profits.

The “First Section” is for the largest companies, the “Second Section” for mid-sized companies, and the “Mothers Section” for high-growth start-up companies.

The Topix covers this first section in its entirety while MSCI only covers a sub-set. The Topix is therefore more representative of the Japan equity market than the MSCI Index, which contains fewer companies (less than 400 names in MSCI vs. roughly 2000 names in Topix).
